Cremation.

A correspondent of the New York Herald says: The progressive spirit of the age has again been illustrated in an event which occurred in Marion, S. C., one day last week, and which can never be obliterated from the minds of those whose privilege it was to witness it. For the first time in the pineteenth sentury in the eventful and illustrious history of South Carolina has a case of actual cremation occur-

The following is a brief recapitulation of the circumstances attending this case :- Oa Sunday, the 9th iost., Mr. Henry Berry, aged eighty-two, a venerable, respected and refined citizen of Marion county, departed this life. The deceased was a successful farmer, having been one of the most excensive planters in the State, at one time during his career having been possessor of 30,000 acres of land, and in addition an independent fortune. At the time of his death his cotton plantation alone contained several thousand acres of the most fertile land

Prior to his death he had requested that his body might be burned. The reasons assigned for this strange desire are as follows : About wenty-four years ago two relatives of his died. After having been buried several years the surviving relatives desired to have the remains disinterred to be removed to a spot located in an adjacent section. In accordance with this desire the bodies were disinterred, and during the removal the coffin lids became detached and the bodies were exposed to the public gaze. Having been buried a long time they were, of course, in a fearful state of decomposition. Mr. Berry was present on this occasion, and, wit nessing the scene, made a solemn declaration that his remains should not be subject to a similar fate. He afterward frequently alluded to the condi ion of the bolies and repeated his declaration mide at the time of the removal. Very little confidence was placed in his statement at the time, but that it was a fixed determination the following will show. The deceased has several surviving sons, all men of advanced age. Several months ago he held a conversation with them, stating that after his death he desired not to be buried, but that his body should consumed by fire, and rejoined upon them that they should participate in the proceedings. Naturally the sens were shocked at this decla ration, and used every available means to dissuade him from his intention. Argument was useless, and entertaining doubts in reference to the faithful execution of his desire, he entered into a contract with two of his employees, al lowing them two mules and $300 if they would superintend the cremation proceedings. The parties accepted the proposition. About two months ago he made a will, in which he very explicitly states that if his sons do not allow his body to be burned and do not participate in the matter that it would be under penalty of disinheritance. During his life he selected two pine trees adjuning his farm which should be used on the occasion and also designated the spot where it should take place. According to arrangements the cremation took place at eight o'clock in the morning. Carriages, buggies and vehicles of every description were in active demand to convey spectators to the scene, and at the appointed time an immense crowd was in attendance. The trees designated by the deceased were out down, and all the necessary arrangements having been perfected the body was laid on a platform surrounded by an enclosure about twenty feet in height. After an appropriate service, held by a Baptist divine, the combustibles were ignited, and in about two hours all that remained of the deceased was ashes.

During the process a variety of opinions were expressed by those in attendance, the prevailing impression being that it was an outrage on the sensibilities of the people and that it should have been prevented by the authorities.

THE QUARRLES OF THE REPUBLICAN LEAD ERS.—The republican party is not a happy family. Discord has begun the canvass. The President is one of the most discontented of its leaders, for he has found another ungrateful man, and this is no less a personage than the republican candidate for the Presidency. When Gen. Hayes was nominated Grant telegraphed his congratulations, and in return Gen. Hayes, in his letter of acceptance, not only refuses to return the politeness, but actually declares himself for one term only. We hear that Grant and his friends consider this an insult to the Presideat and an ancalled for rebuke of his third term aspirations. Grant also found Bristow treacherous, Jewell indifferent and Pratt honest, and has said, in apology for their removal, that he intended to have friends, not enemies, near him. Then the politicians are indignant at Gen. Hayes' views on civil service reform. These ideas of reform they look upon, as Judge Quinn looked upon the growth of the German element in this country, with "alar rum." But the trouble does not end with the administration. It has entered into New York politics. Mr. Conkling, it is said, is very much grieved by the result in Cincinnati and, like Grant, is disposed to consider the letter of General Hayes as intended to help his opponents in the State canvass. Unless the State Convention should nominate Mr. Cornell for Governor it is surmised that the distinguished Senator will not take an active interest in the battle, but will remain, like Achilles, in his tent, and let the Greeks capture democratic Troy, if they can, without him. This dissatisfaction on the part of Mr. Conkling is believed to be increased by the defeat of Mr. Cornell for the Chairmanship of the National Committee and the choice of Z ich Chandler. There seems to be mutiny all around the republican camp.

If this is the way the campaign begins how will it end! Quarrels like these do not generally grow smaler, and the break-up of the Cabinet just at this time and the division of the party in New York State may have a very serious effect upon the November election. The great danger to the party is that out of the, and other differences may grow a breach between the administration and the republican ticket. Such a breach would strengthen Hayes with the people, but would weaken him with the office holders, and it will need all the coachmanship the republican leaders possess to make the good steed "Reform" and the fast nage
"Administration" trot well together in harmass in the Presidential race.—N. Y. Herald.
